Abstract

The abstract should contain 250–300 words and should be presented as a single paragraph. It should briefly present the background/problem, purpose or objectives, methodology, key findings or expected findings, and conclusion/significance of the study.

Keywords: Keyword 1, Keyword 2, Keyword 3, Keyword 4, Keyword 5

1. Introduction

Introduce the research topic and provide the necessary background and context. Briefly establish the research problem, gap, or issue being addressed. Explain why the study is important and relevant to the conference theme and/or selected track.

State the research objectives and/or research questions clearly. The introduction should provide sufficient context without becoming an extensive literature review.

2. Brief Literature Review / Theoretical Background

Briefly discuss the most relevant literature, theories, concepts, or previous studies related to the research. Focus only on literature that is directly relevant to the research problem.

Identify the research gap, unresolved issue, theoretical perspective, or practical problem that the present study addresses. The literature review should be concise and appropriate for the 1,500–2,000-word extended abstract.

3. Methodology

Describe the methodology used in the study. Depending on the nature of the research, this section may include the research design, study setting, participants/sample, sampling technique, data sources, data collection methods, research instruments, and methods of data analysis.

For conceptual, theoretical, review-based, or policy-oriented studies, the methodology may be adapted accordingly.

4. Key Findings and Discussion

Present the major findings of the study clearly and concisely. Only the most important findings should be included. Tables, figures, or other visual representations may be used where they contribute meaningfully to the presentation of the findings.

Discuss the significance of the findings in relation to the research objectives/questions and relevant previous studies or theoretical perspectives. Explain what the findings indicate and how they contribute to existing knowledge, practice, policy, or theory.

Figures should be clear, legible, and of appropriate resolution.

5. Conclusion and Implications

Summarize the main findings and provide a concise conclusion based on the study. Avoid simply repeating the findings.

Briefly explain the implications of the study for research, education, policy, professional practice, society, or other relevant areas. Where appropriate, mention limitations and recommendations for future research.
